Forecast For Yorkshire & the Humber
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 07 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Remaining cold, with many at risk of snow or ice.

Today:
Largely sunny but cold through the morning, with frosts slowly clearing. A band of patchy rain, sleet and snow will move southwards during the afternoon, though perhaps remaining largely dry in eastern parts. Risk of ice on untreated surfaces. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Tonight:
Some clear spells developing at first, before another band of rain, sleet and snow moves southwards later. Slight accumulations likely. Feeling bitterly cold in the wind. Minimum temperature -3 deg C (27 deg F).

Friday:
Feeling bitterly cold with occasional wintry showers though becoming drier and brighter by the afternoon, with lighter winds. Showers becoming confined to coasts during the evening, turning icy in places. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Sharp frost and hazy sunshine on Saturday, cloudier later. Rather cloudy but largely dry and less cold on Sunday. Windy with outbreaks of rain Monday, especially over the western hills.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.